

Activities which support or are supported by the Waiters Union

The Waiters Union mobilise many volunteers to participate in many local community groups - which may or may not identify with Waiters Union. Waiters Union people were involved in setting up the Queensland edition of The Big Issue, a national newspaper sold by homeless people as an employment-generation project. And Waiters Union people are right now involved in coordinating the inner-city inter-church Room in The Inn crash beds pilot program for homeless women at risk in Brisbane.

Some of the activities which support - or are supported by - the Waiters Union include:

1. An annual planning day - a day of planning attended by around twenty to thirty people.
2. Network gatherings - three-hour networking gatherings of twenty people held every six weeks.
3. Coordinating meetings - one-hour co-ordinating meetings of five to ten people every week.
4. Ongoing involvement with Aboriginal people in association with Aunty Jean, a local aboriginal leader.
5. Ongoing involvement with refugees and refugee claimants in association with the West End Migrant and Refugee Support Group, Refugee Airfare Loans Scheme, the Refugee Sewing Group, the One World Singing Group, and E.P.M (Ethical Property Management) - a Refugee Workers Cooperative.
6. Ongoing involvement with people in public housing, boarding houses, and hostels who are struggling with mental and emotional distress in association with A Place To Belong.
7. Ongoing involvement with global justice issues through Servants, TEAR, and the Micah Challenge.
8. Ongoing involvement in and support for alternative local economic ventures such as Justice Products, Ethical Property Management and a backyard chook co-op.
9. Bristol Street House - a structured household of people with a commitment to learning about and practising community involvement with marginalised local residents, giving support in the form of friendship, assistance with living skills, conflict resolution, advocacy, etc.
10. Community meals - a fortnightly evening meal in a local church hall, usually attended by about forty people who bring food to share. The majority live in local supported accommodation hostels; some, who were relocated from their accommodation in West End as one of the consequences of the gentrification of the area in recent years, travel from as far away as Carindale to attend. The meals includes low key recreational activities – such as board games.
11. Community picnics - four times a month a picnic or similar outing is arranged for 10 to 25 people who live in supported accommodation locally and at Carindale.

12. Community transport - using a mini-bus and private cars, two people are rostered each week to provide transport to and from an evening service at St Andrew's Anglican Church, South Brisbane, for about 20 people who would otherwise have difficulty attending.
13. Community fellowship - an evening service held at St Andrews Anglican Church, South Brisbane, for about forty to fifty people, that provides people - particularly those who do not usually have the opportunity - with the opportunity to contribute to a church service, through leading, presenting, praying, sharing and so on.
14. Community Orientation Course - an intensive live-in course focusing on practical community involvement within a Christian community development framework with many of the more marginalised local groups and individuals. Courses are held for two weeks mid year and at the end of the year, involving about a dozen participants each time.
15. Project Hope - a support network for church-based community workers in south-east Queensland, involving a discussion group each six weeks attended by 20 to 30 people and an annual retreat attended by about 45 people.
16. End of year camp - a weekend camp attended by around 50 adults and children.
